5. Benefits for Institutional Members

According to ICCP statutes:

“INSTITUTIONAL MEMBERS: Institutional Members shall be those firms, institutions of higher learning, or other organisations interested in fostering the science of organic petrology. Institutional Members shall have the right to appoint a person as their designated representative. Such a person does not have to be a member.

Institutional Members shall enjoy all the privileges of the Society except that they, or their representatives, shall not hold office or vote. Notwithstanding any of the above limitations, a designated representative of an Institutional Member, who is also an individual member, may so continue to exercise his/her membership rights and privileges on his/her own behalf.”

According to ICCP Council Resolution ICCPC09/5/3 the Institutional Membership fee was established in 700 € per year, having the institution the rights of selecting up to 2 representatives for correspondence. Member fee discounts will apply for up to 5 employees of the Institution willing to take part in ICCP programs.

For individual ICCP members belonging to an Institutional member the rights of the individual member will be maintained without payment of the individual fee.
